

UCLA School of Nursing & California Department of Developmental Services
Present A One Day Workshop

"Family-Centered Nursing Practices"

Improving the Quality of Life for Individuals with Developmental Disabilities and Their Families in the Community

Thursday, October 16, 2003 from 8:00 am - 4:30 pm

Workshop Location
The Radisson San Bernardino
295 North "E" Street
San Bernardino, CA 92401
(909) 381-6181

This workshop will focus on the nurse's role in providing family-centered services for individuals with developmental disabilities. The specific objectives are to:

1. Enhance assessment skills in identification of caregiver/family's strengths and needs for supportive services to improve the quality of family life.
2. Discuss the common mental health problems that caregivers/families face and methods to develop effective interventions to improve the day-to-day functioning of families.
3. Develop teaching plans to assist caregivers/families to monitor the benefits, and side effects of psychotropic and anticonvulsant medications.
4. Develop interventions to help the family and the adolescent or young adult with DD make a successful health care transition to adulthood.
5. Identify methods to assist families in having a sensitive conversation with their family member with DD to make decisions about their health and plan for end of life care.

The sessions will be interactive between the faculty and participants. The basis for the discussion and consultation will be based upon clinical problems and situations provided from the caseloads of the participants.

Websites and publications for additional information on the workshop topics will be provided.

"Family-Centered Nursing Practices" has applied for contact hours of continuing education.
